1999 Otto Piene resorts to one of the oldest artisanal materials for the first time - ceramics. Since 2006 he has worked together with the Cologne ceramic work shop Niels Dietrich and develops his latest group of works of the grid-, fire-, and pit ceramic which also pick up Piene's painting gestures amongst other things. The present grid ceramic shows a strong correlation with the grid pictures of the early 1960s. Like fire pictures, the outcome of the ceramics is also unpredictable because the glaze may react differently during the firing procedure. The glazes form gold or platinum make the ceramics glow. The relief captures the light, reflects and reflects it. The light is reflected back into the room and creates an iridescent shimmer
