The washed pen and ink drawing from a private collection in Dresden shows the same view from Colares, Portugal, west of Sintra. The sheet bears the estate stamp at the bottom right, which is found on the paper on the back of our painting; dated 1859.

In that year, Kummer was in Lisbon for the wedding of the Saxon Prince George and the Portuguese princess Maria Anna and took trips along the coast. In the years that followed, he used the drawings and studies produced here as models for his landscape images, which, with their clear and unaffected rendering of landscape and mood, still appear very modern today.
