"Domestic accoutrements, elegant décor, and homebound rituals characterize much of Marc Camille Chaimowicz's works, which is often described as blurring public and private realms. Bringing together the social space of the gallery with the solitude of the home, Chaimowicz consciously contaminates the fine arts of the former with the decorative arts of the latter, until there is no division between the two."

Kirsty Bell, Parkett Nr. 96, 2015.
