"I think I am experiencing my second childhood through my two-way mirror work. I've never read Lacan, but I feel my work involves the Lacanian 'mirror stage' of childhood, when the young child first experiences his/her sense or non-sense of an ego. I know that through my art I make new friends, which I barely had as a child. And through my 'hobbies' of rock music, architectural tourism and travel, I stay young. I know I am a child when I watch other Aries people (I am an Aries) behaving childishly, like me."

Dan Graham interview with Carmen Rosenberg Miller, Parkett no. 68, 2003.
