"To ask what these images want, then, is having to face the possibility that perhaps they want nothing at all, or nothing in particular. Except, of course, to stun and fascinate: to be allowed to 'matter,' to be taken into account, to be seen. And something in this scenario is of course reminiscent of the highly theatrical productions of rock, its quasi-ritualistic deployment of 'looks' and 'images' that revel in the crude, the incongruous, the over-sophisticated, and the plain stupid - in short, in the big whatever."
Ina Blom, Parkett no. 82, 2008.
