"Unlike other painters who focus on the well-known, the beautiful, and the dynamic between the famous and the secondary. Kilimnik is less absorbed in their perfection. Kilimnik is a bit of a killer. She loves to love them but at times they seem to get on even her nerves. Each character, from fairy tale princesses and birds, to heiresses, orphans, and models, becomes a vessel for a broad mixture of self-doubt and conceit."
Collier Schorr, Parkett no. 52, 1998.
